

File 20110708.2327: Thinking about the near-term future, just in case US defence cuts force Lockheed to lay me off, I should be able to take this new degree in security certification and accreditation to the civilian sector, who will remain under siege from hacking threats and probably will face growing government requirements for certification, and, someday, accreditation as well.

Just thinking idly...

References