

File 20110712.2237: What do normal people do when their email programme hangs, not giving them email? They do what I do when someone has a heart attack: call a doctor, worry, and hope the expert can pull a miracle out of somewhere. The miracles I perform to save Andrea's email are the result of careful planning.

Now you know why I was thinking about email retention instead of writing my chapter. Saw a congratulatory email from Andy Cooper today to Shamal, Ronald, and John on the completion of their DPhils. I just hope I can pull off the miracle too.

I did not work on my Chapter 2 at all today. I must complete it tomorrow.

References