

File 20100615.0920: Notes from Probabilistic Redaction meeting this morning:

Jeff Dutoit is satisfied with RM 5.0 progress through CT&E. There are more actual customer configurations (ten or twelve!) in testing now than for any previous CT&E. More than ever before.

Jeff wants me to keep up with the quarterly progress report. Finish the PDF work. Marso says we are on track to demo something working at the end of June. Kori Phillips is going to figure out how to test it. The tool handles plurals, but not every weird word form in English. [Joe: I think the standard cases can be handled in the normal case; let the exceptions list hold the weirdies.]
