File 20110113.1040: Notes from Systems Engineering meeting 1000 this morning: Kevin Miller reported on 8570.01 that the TIS programme has more CISSPs than any other programme in the building but is behind on the number of people who require lower-levels certs such as Security+. Kevin says that few people on programme need CISSP, but nearly all of them need a lower-level cert (IAT Level 2). Currently there are only two Security+ certs on programme. Rumour has it that DoD will relax the 31st December 2010 deadline for full compliance for IAT and IAM, but no guidance has been published yet.

RMUG planning is happening now. There is a new conference centre being constructed on the A level of Deer Creek.

All-hands next week at the same time as I have a dentist appointment to get the sutures out.
